

"Livestock Asia 2015 is not just a show; it is a venue where expertise and business are evenly combined that will foster long-term relationship between clients and traders. It is an honor to be part of this event and partner with UBM in this special occasion where we can interact with industry people, exchange information with them and also learn from them at the same time. WVPA in Malaysia is a very young organization, I would like to get this chance to promote our international scientific conference. We have got confirmations from well-known speakers from Europe, USA and Asia. Together with WPSA, Malaysia branch, we believed there will be about 250 delegates to join in this scientific conference," says Prof. Dr. Aini Ideris, President of WVPA Malaysia Branch.

"It is our privilege to be part of Livestock Asia, especially at this point where the ASEAN is an emerging market - a home to 625 million people - will definitely play a key role in the world livestock and poultry market with the implementation of the AEC. Poultry production is one of the key developments for economy in the region. We have organized the scientific conference together with WVPA - Malaysia Branch for the second year. This year the theme will be "Enhancing knowledge for advancement in Poultry Health and Production. We expected this will be a good learning platform for sharing experiences and learning about Poultry production from experts around the world who accepted will be attending to attend this event," says Prof. Dr. I. Zulkifli, President, WPSA, Malaysia Branch.
